San francisco districts map 2019

San Francisco is a great city to stay in overnight. Every reputable hotel brand is represented here, so travelers can choose where to pamper. Plus, many of the best hotels in San Francisco pack a major historic punch. The best hotels in San Francisco Read on to learn about the best hotels in the city and luxury older properties. Intercontinental Mark Hopkins TripAdvisor, LLC Listed on virtually every list of the best hotels in San Francisco, Intercontinental Mark Hopkins opened in 1926, on the site of the former 40-room residence of the Mark Hopkins-San Francisco baron who founded the South Pacific Railroad. These days, the place of heritage is equally classic and refined. His coveted nob hill oschol provides incredible views of the city and beyond. Great historical charm remains, but everything is updated with modern style and high-tech features. Conveniently, it's just a short walk from the magnificent Grace Cathedral and within manageable walking distance of key attractions such as North Beach, Chinatown, and the city's main museums. The icing on the cake is the swan roof brand, restaurant and bar on the 19th century. Amenities: Amazing city view from every room, pillow menu, fine linen, Agraria toiletries, plush bathrobes and slippers, in-room Keurig coffee machine, excellent concierge service, free weekday city transport service and fitness center. Book it: Get prices for Mark Hopkins's Intercontinental and other San Francisco Hotels Fairmont San Francisco TripAdvisor, LLC Fairmont San Francisco is legendary—not only for its place in history, such as where the United Nations Charter was drafted in 1945, but also for its Beaux Arts-style architecture and for being where Tony Bennett first crooned I Left My Heart in San Francisco. As luxury hotels in San Francisco go, Fairmont is damn near the top, both in terms of ratings and location. High on Nob Hill, this timeless hotel was built in 1907 (though the 1961 more modern 23-story tower was added) and offers excellent service, luxurious rooms and public spaces, and a recent $85 million restoration to preserve its old-world charm. The cable car line meets right here, so you can take them to see all the sights. Amenities: Le Labo toiletries, 42-inch LED TV, free high speed internet, in-room media connection panel, fitness center, spa, 24-hour business center, excellent concierge service, exclusive penthouse-level Gold Floor service, famous gingerbread house in the lobby during the holidays, and three restaurants, including the whimsical Tonga Room and Hurricane Bar, which serves up mai tais and fake storms for an hour. Book it: Get prices for Fairmont San Francisco and other San Francisco hotels Ritz-Carlton San Francisco TripAdvisor, LLC Hands down one of the best hotels in San Francisco, Ritz-Carlton brings to its high expectations and a long-term reputation as a top-of-the-line service. Luxury abounds, as does personal attention from employees. The hotel occupies a sophisticated 1901 landmark building atop Nob Hill, and is full of all things elegant and refined, including the Parallel 37 restaurant, which serves upscale California cuisine with global touches. If you're up for a waste, the Ritz-Carlton has the city's largest full-service club level, with elaborate food spreads, all the drinks you want, and special tastings from local wineries. Otherwise, try afternoon tea in the lounge or enjoy a Mediterranean-style treatment at the L'Occitane Spa. Amenities: Frette linen, pillow-top mattresses, 55-inch TVs, marble bathrooms, and specialized concierge. Club lounge facilities include complimentary breakfast, lunch starters, dessert, wine and beer. On weekends there is a tasting of caviar. Adjacent to the newly redesigned SFGOMA, the Museum of the African Diaspora is located in the hotel itself. The Jewish Contemporary Museum is less than a block away and is an easy walk to the Moscone Convention Center as well as the city's famous cable car. The interior is modern and sophisticated and has amazing views of the city. The service is elegant and butlers st. Regis are known all over town for their professional hospitality. Facilities: Deep soaking tubs, in-bathroom TV, stone rain shower, CD/DVD player, 55-inch plasma TV, free French press coffee or tea served by butlers on arrival and every morning, 9,000-square-foot Remede Spa, relaxing lounges with handmade truffles and champagne, infinity pool overlooking the city, daily afternoon tea service, and modern grill restaurant. Book it: Get prices for St. Regis and other San Francisco Four Seasons Hotels San Francisco TripAdvisor, LLC Many of the luxury San Francisco hotels have been treated to recent renovations, and the Four Seasons is no exception. Its refreshment makes for a sleek, modern five-star hotel with the Four Seasons' signature warm hospitality and intuitive service. The décor is modern and innovative; art collection itself is worth a visit. From there, you can easily explore the city centre, especially Yerba Buena Gardens and Union Square, which are within walking distance. Rooms have floor-to-ceiling windows since you took it all, and if you book between 9/11 and 11 September, you'll be able to enjoy the floor-to-ceiling windows. Amenities: Large marble bathroom with deep soaking tub, thick terry robes, duvets and pillows, large PLochá screen HDTV, dressing room, spa treatments, 127,000-square-foot Equine Sports Club overlooking Market Street, and popular fifth floor Restaurant. Book it: Get prices for the Four Seasons and other San Francisco Hotels Westin St. Francis TripAdvisor, LLC The Westin St. Francis is one of the best hotels in San Francisco, in one of the best cities in San Francisco: in the heart of Union Square. Indeed at the heart of it all, guests staying at this luxury property step right out onto the cable car dinging by, the city's best theaters, Michelin-starred restaurants, and dozens of shops featuring the most prestigious brands in the world. Built in 1904 with the intention of helping transform San Francisco into Paris in the West, this Westin has been a bona fide Northern California landmark ever since. Amenities: Westin Heavenly bed, 250-fiber-count bedding, Westin brand toiletries, Enseo smart TV, deluxe rooms with modern art and furniture, some rooms with city views, Westin Workout Fitness Studio, Clock Bar, Caruso Restaurant, and historic Oak Room Restaurant. Book it: Get prices for Westin St. Francis and other San Francisco Intercontinental Hotels San Francisco TripAdvisor, LLC Unlike your sister property, the more historic Intercontinental Mark Hopkins made at Nob Hill, this newer Intercontinental is one of the many luxury hotels in downtown San Francisco. However, it stands out for many reasons—not least from all its towering, glowing skyscraper appearance. These 37 upgraded floors are LEED certified, which means they are as eco-friendly as hotels. The service is super personalized, and rooms that radiate modern luxury and comfort are blessed with lots of natural light and plush interiors in soothing neutral tones. Book from 25 March 2017. Facilities: High quality beds and bed linen, plus robe, LCD TV, floor-to-ceiling windows, in-room coffee makers, iPod docking stations, club floor option, 24-hour room service, fitness centre, 10-room spa, indoor pool, romantic package including petals, lobby bar 888 (with 100 grappa types) and michelin-starred Luce Luce restaurant offering a nine-course tasting menu of excellent Italian cuisine. Book it: Get prices for Intercontinental San Francisco and other San Francisco Hotels Argonaut Hotel TripAdvisor, LLC Although Argonaut, one of San Francisco's best hotels, has recently been renovated, it retains its original 1907 exposed brick structure as well as its ubiquitous and charming maritime theme and increased service levels. At once whimsical and homely, Argonaut occupies a picture-perfect place in the heart of Fisherman's Wharf. Request a room with a view and you will be treated to windows directly above the bay. Facilities: Luxury bath products, comfortable beds, chair and workstation in the style of Eames, valet parking, six tall rooms with extra long beds and raised shower heads, loaners, fitness center, spa treatments using natural ingredients and Blue Mermaid Restaurant. Book it: Get prices for Argonaut Hotel and other San Francisco Hotels Loews Regency San Francisco TripAdvisor, LLC The Loews Regency isn't just one of the best hotels in San Francisco—it's also very high. Opened in 2015, it occupied the top 11 floors of the 48-storey skyscraper, with stunning views from each room. In fact, the Bridge on the Terrace Suite bridge includes 2,000 square feet of unobstructed views from the Golden Gate to the Bay Bridge. But even if you stay in one of Loews' more standard abodes, you'll have hotel chic service, modern style, and soothing décor, plus a central financial district location that makes it easier to get almost anywhere in the city quickly. Facilities: Frette bed linen, Julien Farel toiletries, 47-inch flat-screen TV, 24-hour room service, full-service spa, yoga classes at the 40th annual Women's Party. Book it: Get prices for Loews Regency and other San Francisco Hotels Palace Hotel TripAdvisor, LLC Probably grand dame hotels of San Francisco, Palace Hotel was originally built in 1875. After it was mostly destroyed by an earthquake, it was rebuilt in 1909, definitively setting the standard for luxury hotels in San Francisco. The interiors here are nothing short of extraordinary, from the lobby's imperially high ceilings to piper bar's warm oak walls and works of art significance. But the hotel's crown jewel, no one will compete, is its Garden Court restaurant, which looks like it's straight out of an elaborate dream: its dome is made of 72,000 pieces of rainbow stained glass, and dazzles chandeliers with chandeliers made of Austrian crystal. Rooms are lavish, though more modern, made in plum and gray tones with tall windows and touches of marble. The hotel's charming indoor pool (perfect for unpredictable SF weather) looks at the skyline and every staff here is generously attentive. Facilities: Pillow-top canopy bed, luxury linen, marble baths, rain shower heads, 48-inch LED TV, many specialty suites available, indoor heated pool, 24-hour fitness center, business center, free coffee in the lobby, dry cleaning and laundry services, childcare services, free shine shoes, currency exchange and translation services, legendary Garden Court restaurant, and Pied Piper Bar & Grill.
